'CAPPY RICKS' IS PLEASING SHOW

Owl and Nightingale Players Well-Received At Brua Chapel.

REINARTZ AGAIN STARS

In Cast in Role of The Inimitable "Cappy Ricks"; Miss Louise Dougherty is Pleasing Leading Lady.

"Cappy Ricks" with his entourage came trooping from the pages of the novel by that name at Brua Chapel, Saturday evening, when Owl and Nightingale Dramatic Club players gave a vivid presentation of that inimitable farce comedy story, written by Peter B. Kyne.

Taken from a novel which has "few equals and no superiors," in the opinion of many readers, the dramatization was as inimitable as the book itself, persons who saw the play declare.

Frederick E. Reinartz, of East Liverpool, Ohio, whose characterization of the "stern papa" in "Duley," the last Owl and Nightingale production, is still remembered by persons who saw the production, was again cast in the role of an elderly man, this time bearing the difficult role of "Cappy Ricks" himself.

As is customary with Reinartz, he threw himself whole-soul into his part, and endeavored to live and feel as the man whose part he was given to portray. In this he succeeded, for he had the audience convulsed in laughter when humorous lines were spoken, and touched the heartstrings of the theatergoers when the play took a pathetic turn, as it did several times.

Miss Louise C. Dougherty, of Hazelton, was cast in the leading female role, that of "Cappy Ricks'" daughter, Florrie. Miss Dougherty's acting was easy to look upon since she preceded.

ODDS AGAINST IT, HIGH TEAM WINS

Defeats Lebanon in Last Minute Slugging Rally On Saturday.

A last-minute rally, as spectacular as any set down in fiction, was staged by the Gettysburg High School baseball team at Lebanon Saturday afternoon, when Lebanon High was defeated 5 to 4.

The two teams entered the seventh inning with Gettysburg in the van by three runs. Lebanon had none. Then Tennant ran into some hard luck when two men walked and two others got hits, netting the Pretzel Benders a total of three runs. In the eighth White, Lebanon's shortstop, connected with one of his favorites, and he made a circuit of the bases.

In the same inning with Gettysburg at bat, Heiges smashed one toward the outfield fence, but unfortunately the ball struck the top of the fence and rolled back, holding him down to a double. The inning ended with Lebanon on the long end of a score of 4 to 3.

Came the ninth frame, which was Gettysburg's out and out. Lebanon's three batters were set down in apple pie order. Four hits were collected from the offerings of Lloyd, Lebanon's moundman, netting Gettysburg two runs, which established Gettysburg's lead of one run.

But that is only half of the story. Three of the hits and the two runs were scored after two outs had been made, Myers having struck out and Weikert, who had had three hits, tipping a foul into the catcher's glove. Hits then by Tennant, Moser and McKenrick saved the day and the victory for Gettysburg.

FINDS OLD IRISH COIN, DATED DURING REVOLUTION

Milton R. Remmel, while digging in the gutter of East Middle street in front of his home there on Saturday afternoon, unearthed an Irish coin which is believed to be the oldest ever found in the vicinity of Gettysburg. This coin, a bronze piece, is dated 1781.

On the face of the piece is the inscription, GEORGIUS III REX, running in a circle, surrounding a head in profile. The back bears the word HIBERNIA, and the date 1781. The value of the piece is not indicated on the metal. Mr. Remmel is taking steps to discover the history of the Irish coin, with an idea of learning its original and present value, and whether it was used in the Colonies as legal tender at the time of the Revolution and shortly afterward.

Music Week Is Ushered In With Program At High School

Will Reach Its Culmination Friday When Lectures On Music Will Be Given By Authorities On Subject; Special Numbers At Assembly Each Morning During Week At High School.

"Give More Thought to Music" is the slogan for Music Week, being celebrated in Gettysburg and throughout the country from May 4 to 10.

At the Gettysburg High School it was decided to "give more thought to music" with the result that this morning a program of vocal and instrumental numbers was given by High School pupils. The numbers were capably given and well-received by the other pupils.

The program furnished at the High School this morning will be given again this evening at the regular weekly luncheon of the Gettysburg Rotary Club, as a special feature. As given this morning, the program follows:

"Gavotte" and "Murmuring Winds," violin solo, Paul Reaser, accompanied by Alfred Gilbert; "Welcome Pretty Primrose" and "An Irish Love Song," soprano solo, Miss Evelyn Thomas; "Wake Miss Lindy," "Sweet Miss Mary" and "Swing Along," double quartet, composed of Evelyn Thomas, Gladys Daniels, Marguerite Rogers, Catherine Hartman, Charles Rogers, Jarvis Robinson, Clifton Wierman and Paul Dougherty.

At each morning assembly at the High School, special programs of music will be given as part of the national observance of Music Week.

On Tuesday morning, current events in music will be given by Miss Edith Clare, Clifton Wierman and Howard Robinson.

Gettysburg's Rotarians will visit the High School on Wednesday morning and the Rotarians and pupils exchange several group songs.

Henry Scharf, a graduate of the High School, a violinist of note, will entertain the High School assembly on Thursday morning, and on Friday morning the Seminary Quartet, composed of T. Benton Peery, Ralph C. Robinson, Felix G. Robinson and Carl

R. Simon, will be the entertainers.

On Friday afternoon, a special treat is in store for music lovers of Gettysburg and pupils at the High School and the Seventh and Eighth grades at the Meade building. At 2:30 o'clock on that day, Sigmund Spaeth, noted lecturer on music, who appeared at Brua Chapel earlier in the year, will be at the Lincoln Way Theater for an address.

The music department of the High School will finance the appearance of Dr. Spaeth and since it is to be a special school endeavor he has agreed to appear at one-half his usual fee for a lecture. Dr. Spaeth's lecture will be open to the public to whom an invitation has been extended by Miss Lucille Henry, supervisor of music in the Gettysburg public schools.

On Friday night, Dr. C. F. Hoben, of the State Department of Education, Harrisburg, will speak to the parents of school children and the general public at an open meeting to be held at the Gettysburg High School, under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers' Association, a special meeting of that organization having been called by Mrs. Karl J. Grimm, president.

A special music program, in addition to Dr. Hoben's lecture, will be furnished.

Purpose of Music Week

Music Week, it is stated, will emphasize the importance of music in everyday life—in the lives of the 90 per cent of the people who are not now patrons of concerts, opera or are not interested in any definite way in music. The concentration of many musical events into one week has for its purpose the awakening of the whole community to the importance of music as a factor in life, a civic asset and a social stabilizer, sponsors declare.

SIX TEAMS START IN ADAMS LEAGUE

Gettysburg and Hanover Game Is Postponed; Other Games Attract.

Six teams in the Adams County Baseball League went into action Saturday for the first time. The results of the first clashes follow:

Biglerville, ...	12
Littlestown, ...	6
McSherrystown, ...	5
Arendtsville, ...	4
New Oxford, ...	4

Gettysburg's team was to have crossed bats with Hanover in the opening fray on the latter's grounds Saturday, but the condition of Hanover's diamond was responsible for calling off the game.

At McSherrystown, New Oxford and Biglerville, where the three games were played, good-sized crowds turned out to see the new League in action.

At Biglerville, a parade preceded and followed the game. There were no high spots in the game, except the heavy slugging of the whole Biglerville nine, Collins, the Littlestown hurler, being battered for twelve hits and as many runs. Seven errors counted much against the lower county team.

Following is the box score of the Biglerville-Littlestown game:

SHOCKEY ASKS FOR NEW TRIAL

Found Guilty of Second Degree Murder, In Spite Of Defense Plea.

Counsel for Samuel Shockey, who Saturday night was found guilty of murder in the second degree in connection with the slaying of his brother, Jacob, is expected to file a motion for a new trial tomorrow. He announced after the verdict was returned that such a motion would be made. Unless another trial is granted Shockey will be sentenced Tuesday.

Shockey, according to testimony at his trial, shot his brother in a fight over Eva Wills, a 20-year-old Columbus, Ohio, girl. The fight occurred last March along a mountain road near Beartown. Both Miss Wills, who witnessed the battle, and Shockey testified that he had shot in self defense and only after Jacob had fired twice at him without effect.

Miss Wills also is under indictment charged with murder, but she will not be tried at this term of court.

MOTOR PATROL TO COVER ALL IMPORTANT HIGHWAYS

Main Roads Leading Out of Gettysburg Will Be Patrolled by Force.

The Motor Highway Patrol detachment, located in Gettysburg last week, and composed of Corporal C. Smith and Patrolman Rankin Metcalf, has been augmented by the arrival of Patrolman C. Zortman, of York. This addition now completes the force which will be maintained here for the present season, it is stated.

Corporal Smith has been engaged in mapping out patrols for his men, and the territory which will be covered by them takes in all important roads in the county.

Patrols will be maintained over the highways between Gettysburg and the following towns: York, Hanover, Chambersburg, Emmitsburg, Dillsburg, Carlisle, Littlestown and Waynesboro.

ACADEMY WINS ITS FIRST HOME CONTEST

The Gettysburg Academy won its first home baseball game Saturday when Marston's University School for Boys, Baltimore, was defeated, 9 to 8, in an eleven inning contest. It was a game of many thrills, features being home runs by Dean and Thomas and a great catch by Dean.

STRICKEN WHILE ON HIGH LADDER

Augustus Riffe, Littlestown, Seized With Paralysis While Painting House.

DIES FEW HOURS LATER

Rescuers Experience Difficulty in Reaching Victim to Lower Him to Ground; Mrs. Theodore Sowers Dies.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock this afternoon for Augustus H. Riffe, an aged painter of Littlestown, who died Friday afternoon, several hours after being stricken by paralysis. The Rev. Dr. S. F. Lindamanna, pastor of Christ Reformed church, and the Rev. Earl G. Kline, pastor of Redeemer's Reformed church, both of Hanover, officiated at the services, which were followed by interment in Mount Carmel cemetery, at Littlestown.

Mr. Riffe was stricken by paralysis while at the top of a tall ladder, engaged in painting the home of Mrs. Stonesifer on Lombard street in Littlestown on Friday.

He was clinging to the ladder apparently in helpless condition when noticed by Charles Krebs and Howard Duttera, Littlestown, who happened to be passing by. At the risk of their own lives, they succeeded in getting the aged man safely to the ground, one going up on the ladder on which Mr. Riffe was and the other man using another ladder which was placed beside the first one.

Dr. H. S. Crouse was summoned and after administering first aid removed the man to his home where he passed away early in the afternoon. He was stricken at about 10 a. m.

Mr. Riffe was aged 73 years, eight months and 23 days. He was born in Germany township. His parents were the late Edward and Lydia Riffe. Surviving are his wife, four sons, Harry, Hanover; Charles Littlestown; Albertus, Taneytown; Claude, Westminster, Maryland, and two daughters, Mrs. Morris James and Mrs. Oscar Shull, Hanover, and 24 grandchildren.

The deaths of Mr. Riffe and of Mrs. Lucinda C. Rohrbach occurred in the same house about a day apart. A double house is occupied by the Riffe and Rohrbach families. Mrs. Rohrbach's funeral was held Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Mrs. Theodore Sowers, wife of Theodore Sowers, died at 6:30 o'clock Friday morning at her home, (Continued on Third Page)

LOCAL D. A. R. MEETS

Officers of Chapter are Relected at Saturday Meeting.

The May meeting of the Gettysburg Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held Saturday afternoon, in the chapter room, in the First National Bank building, with twenty-six members present. A report of the National D. A. R. conference, which was held recently in Washington, D. C., was given by the delegate, Mrs. Guile Lefever.

Mrs. William A. Granville, of Chicago, Illinois, ex-regent of the chapter, was present and conducted the meeting during the annual election of officers, which resulted in the reelection of the following: regent, Mrs. J. BAIL OF TODDES ORDERED FORFEIT

Eddie Did Not Produce His Brother, George, When Case Was Called.

Bond of $1,000 for the appearance at a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace J. L. Hill of George Toddes, of Gettysburg, charged with violation of the liquor law, was ordered forfeited by Judge D. P. McPherson in court Saturday afternoon.

Toddes was not at home on January 19 when State, county and borough officers raided his home together with several others where alleged liquor was found. A warrant was issued for his arrest, but he was never apprehended, because, it is understood, he has not returned to Gettysburg since the raid.

His brother, Eddie Toddes, posted $1,000 bail for the appearance of his brother at the preliminary hearing, but the latter was not produced when his case was called before Justice Hill.

Bail of H. E. Rebert, of near Littlestown, in the amount of $700 for his appearance in court, was also ordered forfeited by Judge McPherson Saturday afternoon. G. R. Thompson, of Gettysburg, was the bondsman.

Harry L. Wertz, of Adams county, was ordered by Judge McPherson Saturday afternoon to pay $2 a week for the support of his child. A charge of non-support had been laid against Wertz by his wife, Mrs. Lulu E. Wertz. Wertz was also ordered to furnish bail in the sum of $300 to comply with the court's order.

COMMITTEE WILL DECIDE WINNERS

Mixup Results In Field Day Events Through Entrants' Failure to Be Weighed.

Owing to a mixup, said to have resulted from the failure of certain members of Biglerville teams to be weighed to determine the class in which they should be entered, some of the results of Saturday's annual field day meet for children of rural and graded schools in Adams county, will not be definitely known until Tuesday, it was announced this morning at the office of W. Raymond Shank, county superintendent of schools.

The field and track meet of Adams county's school children on Saturday at Nixon Field was the most successful of its kind, according to Professor Shank. More than 400 boys and girls, representing almost every rural and graded school in the county, participated in the forty-two events on the program. With the exception of the volley ball games, which were played at the playground, the other events were run off on Nixon Field.

It was almost 6 o'clock, Saturday evening, before the final events were called and settled to determine the schools entitled to the three silver trophies to be awarded and the pennants to be given individual winners. The best race of the meet was the half-mile relay run in the Junior unlimited class for boys. Littlestown, Arendtsville, Biglerville, East Berlin and Gettysburg had runners in this event. Arendtsville's runners led the field for the first part; then Gettysburg's trackmen forged into the lead, and it looked certain that the Gettysburg team would win.

Just fifteen yards from the finish, however, Gilbert, another man for Biglerville, put forth an extra burst of speed, passed the Gettysburg runner and came in winner by a matter of inches.

The committee in charge of the field day meet held a meeting after the last events had been decided. It was then revealed that certain of the athletes had not been weighed to determine the class in which they were to be entered. As a result of this circumstance, the committee decided to withhold announcement of the winners in some of the events until the matter has been straightened out.

The committee, headed by Professor Lloyd C. Keefe, will hold a meeting this evening in the office of the superintendent of schools at the court house. Announcement of the winners was promised for Tuesday.

Other members of the committee are Miss Helen H. Hartley, Miss Lydia S. Rebert, John A. Hale, Leslie V. Stock, Elmer M. Gruver, Clarence P. Keefer, John M. Stitt, Miss Edna Albert, Miss Mary E. Rudisill, J. Claire VanDyke and George H. Funt.

Miss Margaret McMillan, secretary of the Adams county Red Cross chapter, was in charge of the weighing of the athletes.

Professor Harry R. Allen, of the State Department of Education, was the referee; Charles W. Myers, timer, and Frederick Reinartz, starter. C. A. Arneson was the announcer.

MASKING BILL HITS AT KLAN

Vigilance Committee Will Urge Measure Upon State Legislature.

CITES COUNTY ACTIVITY

Western Pennsylvania Districts in "Throes of Anarchy," Says Director; Predicts Tragedy Worse Than Lilly.

An antimasking bill directed at the Ku Klux Klan, making it unlawful to appear upon the highways of the state wearing masks or hoods, will be presented to the legislature at Harrisburg by the Pennsylvania division of the National Vigilance Committee, headquarters in Philadelphia, it was announced Sunday.

Prominent among the members of the Pennsylvania division are former Judge John M. Patterson, the Rev. Dr. Russell H. Conwell, Joseph L. Durkin, Thomas McKean, Michael J. McEnery, Abraham Sablosky, John Sherwood Jones, George P. Phillips and Gerald A. Dougherty.

Passage of the antimasking bill is imperative, according to Thomas J. Culhane, state director of the organization, who returned Sunday from the western tier of Pennsylvania counties, where the Ku Klux Klan has been active recently.

Several of the counties in this state are already in the throes of anarchy because of the activities of the Klan, he declared, and Bedford, Cambria, Blair and Huntingdon counties are on the verge of armed conflict.

Members of the so-called invisible empire and their opponents, he said, are arming themselves with pistols, knives, rifles and bombs. In one town in the western tier of counties, he said, machine guns have been set up on a hill in preparation for a threatened attack by hooded klansmen.

Mr. Culhane warned that a tragedy more serious than the Lilly riots, which resulted in three deaths, is in prospect unless the force of an enlightened public opinion is turned upon these communities, which have been reduced by the Klan to "a state of intimidation almost unbelievable in this so-called advanced stage of civilization."

WILL PROBE NEW LIQUOR SCANDAL

Senate Hears of 5,000 Cases Whisky Given Stockholders "Legally."

(By Associated Press.) Washington, May 5.—Legal steps, by which a Chicago liquor house distributed 5,000 cases of high grade liquors among its stockholders and escaped penalty under the Volstead act, were described today before the Senate Daugherty investigation.

Charles A. Williams, attorney for the company, explained the plan by which the corporation was dissolved, and its assets of whiskeys and wines turned over to 130 Chicago citizens who bought out the eight or ten original stockholders.

Though the prohibition enforcement unit has instituted prosecution against officials who issued the permits, the attorney insisted that the transaction was legal.

OTTERBEIN GUILD WILL GIVE "BOOK OF RUTH"

The Otterbein Guild, of the Gettysburg United Brethren church, will give a dramatization of the "Book of Ruth," on Friday evening, May 9, at the church on West High street. Elaborate preparations are being made for the presentation which will be open to the public. More than twenty persons will take part in the production for which special scenery and costumes are being prepared.

PEOPLE MUST VOTE ON BONUS

Court Rules State Amendment Must Go Before General Populace.

NO EFFECT ON ROAD LOAN

Contention Payment to Soldiers Is Unconstitutional Is Not Upheld by Court, After Deliberation.

(By Associated Press.) Harrisburg, May 5.—The soldier bonus amendment must be submitted to the people, the Dauphin county court held in an opinion today dismissing the action which sought to restrain the secretary of the commonwealth from advertising and certifying the amendment.

The court held that "the vote upon the bonus amendment will not have the effect of changing the limit of highway indebtedness," it having been contended that the amendment which cites the limit of highway bonds at $50,000,000 would nullify the increases to $100,000,000 authorized by the road bonds amendment last November.

The contention that the bonus amendment violates that section of the constitution which provides that no amendment may be submitted oftener than once in five years was gone into at length, the court holding this section to be applicable only when an amendment had been submitted and rejected.

Cordova, Alaska, May 5.—The three United States Army aviators, continuing the round-the-world flight without Major F. L. Martin, Saturday flew from Dutch Harbor, Unalakleet Island, to Atka Island, 350 miles toward Japan.

The aid cruisers New Orleans, Chicago and Boston, commanded, respectively, by Lieuts. Lowell H. Smith, Erik F. Nelson and Leigh Wade, made the journey in 4 hours and 15 minutes despite a low fog the entire distance.

No Word From Martin

No word has been received of Major Martin, commander of the squadron, and his mechanic, Sgt. Alva Harvey, missing since Wednesday after attempting to rejoin their companions at Dutch Harbor, Unalakleet Island, from Chignik, Alaska.

The world flight from Atka Island to Chicago, Attu Island, a distance of 530 miles, will be continued today, when the United States Coast Guard cutter Haida arrives.

Longest Hop Soon To Come

Atka Island is in the Andreanof group of the Aleutians. The cruisers landed at Nazan Bay, on the northeast side of the island. When the machines reach Attu Island final preparations will be taken for the longest flight of the entire 27,000-mile trip, a jump of 878 miles to Shimushu Island, in the Kurile group, near Japan.

Midway Whitewashed

New Oxford applied the whitewash brush to Midway on the former's field Saturday, with Graft on the mound. Kuhn was the opposing twirler. Four errors on the part of H. Legore at shortstop were in a large measure responsible for Midway's defeat, although Graft was close with his hits, allowing but four scattered bingles during the contest. The box score:

COAST-TO-COAST AIR MAIL JULY 1

Eight Cents Will Carry Letter to Chicago; 24 Cents to Frisco.

AIRWAY TO BE LIGHTED

Mails Will Be Carried by New Service Even if Destination Is Not Along Route of Planes.

Washington, May 5.—Inauguration of daily permanent air mail service between the Statue of Liberty and the Golden Gate, July 1, the moment appropriations made by Congress become available, is planned by the Postoffice Department.

Postmaster-General New said Sunday experiments conducted last August, when mail planes crossed the continent eight times, flying at night over a lighted path 1,000 miles long between Chicago and Cheyenne, proved the practicability of night flying, in that a record of 100 per cent performance was set up.

The tests, covering four days, established an elapsed time record east-bound of 26 hours 14 minutes, and westbound about 29 hours, compared with 87 hours by train.

Safety First, To Be Rule

The new air mail schedule will not attempt to set speed records. Safety of the pilots and safe handling of the mails will be the prime requisite. Instead of 26 hours eastbound the new schedule calls for 32 hours 5 minutes. Westbound the time will be 34 hours, 45 minutes, instead of 29 hours.

It is suggested that one does not require prophetic vision to see that in a few years, perhaps months, the coast-to-coast air mail flying will be cut to 24 hours.

With a view to protecting the flyers and guarding against mishap bids for new planes with slower landing speeds, deemed necessary at night, will be opened June 10.

How Airway Is Lighted

No delay will be occasioned in re-conditioning the lighting system along the lighted airway. This airway is lighted with automatic acetylene lights every three miles. Every 25 miles there is an emergency landing field, provided with a revolving electric searchlight. At intervals of about 250 miles is a regular landing field, equipped with a revolving searchlight of 500,000,000 candle power, which casts a beam from 100 to 150 miles.

Special air mail postage has been arranged for. Stamps, in denominations of eight, 16 and 24 cents, will be on sale. For rate purposes, the route has been divided into three zones, one between New York and Chicago, another between Chicago and Cheyenne, and the third between Cheyenne and San Francisco.

Rates and Zones

An eight-cent air mail stamp will carry an ounce letter anywhere within one of these zones; while it will require a 16-cent stamp to carry such a letter into the second zone and a 24-cent stamp to the third zone.

Letters originating at, or destined to, points off the air mail route will not require additional postage. For instance, an ounce letter mailed at New York for St. Paul, with the special air mail postage of eight cents, will be taken by plane to Chicago, where it will go by train to its destination. Such a letter, leaving New York about 10:30 in the morning, should reach St. Paul by 7:30 the following morning.

Crystal Sets May Hear London Stations

It certainly would be a great surprise to many radio listeners to receive London broadcasting stations on their crystal sets. However, this and other dreams of imaginative radio fans may soon be realized when the new transmitting apparatus invented by Guglielmo Marconi, the radio wizard whose inventions made radio communication practicable, is perfected. This signal piece of construction work in the radio field, which is based on extensive experiments conducted by the inventor and his colleague, Mr. C. S. Franklin, promises to revolutionize completely the present methods of long-distance transmission. The gist of the new invention, according to Mr. Marconi's announcement at a recent meeting in London, over which he presided, is that the radio waves are concentrated in the form of beams that can be projected in any desired direction. In this way all the power can be sent in one direction, thus intensifying the strength of the signals considerably over unheard-of distances, and the electrical energy required for such directional transmission is much less than the amount otherwise used. Marconi also stated that in his recent experiments with the new method he communicated with St. Vincent, on one of the Cape Verde islands, located approximately 2,400 miles from England, with much less power than otherwise used to span this distance, and receiving the signals much more clearly, and that he was led to believe that owners of crystal sets in America would soon be able to receive London broadcasting stations. The new method may also be used to guide ships through fog.

When a wooden post or brace is to be set on a smooth concrete floor, it often becomes a problem how to make it stand securely without the danger of slipping.

If two or three 1/2-in. holes are chiseled in the concrete and nails driven into the bottom of the post, until about 1/2 in. of the head end is exposed and in such a position that they will project into the holes in the concrete, the post will not slip.

METHODISTS PLEA FOR WORLD COURT

Conference Report Calls on Government To Put End To Wars.

Springfield, Mass., May 5.—The union of nations in the cause of peace and the union of the Methodist churches of America in the cause of Christianity were indorsed by the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church in their address to the quadrennial general conference, in session here Sunday. The report, the official pronouncement of the episcopacy, was presented by Bishop Joseph F. Berry, of Philadelphia, senior bishop of the church.

Limitation of the church's ban on amusements to those which cannot be enjoyed in the name of Jesus Christ was recommended by the Bishops, who also suggested means of combating the divorce problem and favored prohibition enforcement and restriction of immigration into this country. They reaffirmed the church's fundamental doctrines in view of the present-day theological controversy.

Must Do More Than Protest

Condemning war as "a law of the jungle" and "organized revenge," the bishops advocated the entry of the United States into the world court.

"The church of Jesus Christ," the report read, "must never again quietly acquiesce in national or international politics which promote war-like tempers and attitudes. It must do more than mildly protest. The whole strength of the united church of Christ must be thrown with compelling force against warlike policies and preparations."

"Our position must be that international warfare, unless indisputably in self-defense or defense of humanity, is a monstrosity of the pagan past, which has absolutely no proper place in the program of the modern world. We respectfully remind the Government of the United States that we expect the Federal authorities to discover a method other than war to settle international disputes."

PROBE INTO NAVY POWER IS ASKED

Inquiry Into Present Strength To Be Asked Of Congress Today.

TWO RESOLUTIONS SEEN

Representative Britten Wants Facts on Strength of American, British and Japanese Fleets at Present.

Washington, May 5.—Two resolutions will be introduced today in the House with the object of ascertaining the present strength of the American Navy, particularly as compared with those of Great Britain and Japan.

Representative Britten, of Illinois, ranking Republican on the Naval Committee, announced Sunday he would propose that the navy transmit to Congress a report covering 27 points, while Representative Rogers, Republican, Massachusetts, said he would offer a terse resolution of inquiry. Both declared they were acting as a result of the recent report of Admiral Cointz, commander-in-chief of the battle fleet, in which deficiencies in the navy were pointed out.

Outlines Hits Resolution

Outlining the resolution he will offer, Mr. Britten said it would "once more call to the attention of the country the shocking state of our unpreparedness in a naval sense." "Just imagine," he declared in a statement, "spending $175,000,000 over a period of years for submarine construction only to find that we have not a single ship that is worth a darn. If it takes the Government 10 years to build a useless submarine, how long will it require to build a good one?"

Stresses Aviation Need

"I am certain our navy is not on a parity with England's and I am not so sure that Japan is very far behind us, notwithstanding our right under the Washington conference to be nearly twice her size."

"Our greatest necessity is proper aviation to accompany the fleet. Yet we are taking five or six years to build plane carriers which should be constructed in three."

The Britten resolution will not only touch on the strength of the American Navy, but will seek information from the Navy Department as to strength, in various particulars, of the British and Japanese navies.

Says People Are Alarmed

Representative Rogers declared that "the friends of the American Navy have recently become greatly alarmed at the disclosures concerning the physical condition of our war vessels, as well as at the inadequacy in the number of several types." If the navy really is being maintained at the strength agreed upon at the Washington conference, he added, apprehension can be dismissed.

"But if we are not," he added, "it is incumbent upon the Administration and Congress to make good the deficiencies. It is as fundamental a policy of the American nation to maintain the 5-5-3 treaty navy ratio as it is to maintain the Monroe Doctrine. Inactivity by the Administration or Congress in this vital matter should not and will not be tolerated by the American people."

Bird Songs Like Human Talk According to Naturalist

Study of the sounds made by birds is urged by a scientist who declares their utterances resemble human talk. He said that these songs or one-syllabled calls have inflections of pitch and emphasis closely resembling the same phenomena in the speaking voice and that at times the whistles, chirps or twitter, resemble human words. The building up of a dictionary of bird sounds with reference to their pitch, intensity, speed, form, expression and timbre was urged.

Serum to Dissolve Cancer Tested by Doctors

After ten years of study and experiments, two Vienna physicians have announced that they have found a sub-

When a considerable portion of the bark around a wounded tree is knocked off the tree is very apt to die. This can usually be prevented, however, by dressing the wound, that is, by cutting down the ragged edges and giving the exposed portion a liberal application of melted paraffin.

JOSEPH GREER and His DAUGHTER by HENRY KITCHELL WEBSTER.

COPYRIGHT by The BOBBS-MERRILL CO.

Alison, on letting him in and being asked where she was, had expressed the correctly servile "believe" that she was at the telephone. A minute later Joe had met her coming down the hall, kissed her with his accustomed hug, and then, merely by way of saying something, asked her whom she'd been telephoning to. She'd answered, instantly, "I wasn't telephoning"; adding, a moment later, "Oh, it was just a wrong number."

The thing had been buzzing in his brain ever since like a plaguey mosquito. Why hadn't she said it was a wrong number in the first place rather than at the end of a palpable hesitation? There must be a dozen ways of explaining the contradiction, only he couldn't think of one nor could he make up his mind to ask her. It was with a sense of escape from all this that he launched a subject that could be talked about.

"You needn't worry any more about that Cape Cod idea," he told her. "That's all fixed. I told Henry, yesterday, that I meant to keep you round with me for a while before you went anywhere; but he gave me sort of a hint that I'd better talk it over with Margaret, myself, so I dropped in there tonight on the way home. The invitation's still open; any time you want to go down there for a week or two, we're to let her know a few days ahead. But she understands it won't be for the summer."

Beatrice said, rather dryly, "I suppose she's broken-hearted about that."

"They're all perfectly friendly with you, seems to me," the girl commented. Joe said he was glad they were. "One thing I've learned in fifty years is to take the best advice I can get whenever I'm off my own beat. And there's probably nothing I'm more ignorant about than bringing up young girls. So if Margaret or Jennie MacArthur or Mrs. Williamson feels friendly enough to offer me any suggestions, I'm just that much ahead. So far as I know, there aren't any professional consultants in that field, though it's plain there ought to be."

"I don't know just how we're going to manage things," he went on, a propitiatory good humor transforming the words. "It's the biggest handful I ever tackled. You see, you can't live here alone very well, with just the servants. If only for the look of the thing. It looks to me as if the thing to do was to hire some middle-aged woman to be a sort of governess-companion for you and housekeeper on the side. Then I could go away, when I had to, without leaving you high and dry. I'm going to have to be away a good deal, too, this summer and fall especially. Even when I'm not away, you're alone too much in the daytime. She could take you to matinees—all sorts of places where you wouldn't want to go alone. And mornings she could give you lessons. She'd want to be the right sort, of course. But there wouldn't be much trouble about that; there are plenty of them to choose among—some Englishwoman, I suppose, would be best."

Still without looking around at him, she asked, "What kind of lessons? History and French and things like that?"

Her tone was muffled, ambiguous; and it was this, more than anything else, that made him hesitate. "Why, I suppose so," he answered dubiously. "Manners, too?" she inquired. "How to talk with an English accent, and never raise my voice? And what kind of clothes to wear, so that nasty little Dorothy Williamson can't laugh at me behind my back?"

"Look here, Trix," he commanded. "We've been over this before. You agreed to learn their game. It's no disgrace not to know it, but it's silly to make a fuss about learning it, when to go on not knowing it will put you at a disadvantage. It won't be hard to do."

"But if you go around flinching at everything and imagining people are laughing at you, you can be a—unhappy. It is imagination, mostly, with you. Certainly no one was laughing at you last Sunday up at Williamson's."

She whipped around upon him with a furious contradiction. "They were! A whole lot you know about it! You weren't there to see."

"I could see you were having what sounded like a good time."

"I laughed too loud, I suppose," she commented. "Oh, some of the fellows were decent enough. But the girls, especially your darling Dodo—Oh, she makes me sick!"

"She's no darling of mine," he declared—with a grin, for the notion that Trix might be jealous amused him. "Go after her, if you don't like her. Beat her at her own game. Take her boys away from her. Show her up—Only you won't do it by wishing you could. Let me hire you the right sort of governess, and after she's showed you the ropes you'll be able to give Dodo the laugh."

"That isn't what you want her for," the girl said, with sulky conviction, at the end of a long stare. "You want her because those women have been telling you how horrible it is for me to have any fun my own way; going anywhere alone, or taking drives with anybody but George—George Burns, I mean."—This in answer to his sharply interrogatory frown.—I suppose Dodo would call him Burns. They've made you ashamed of me, too, I guess.

"Don't be a fool, Trix!" He hadn't meant to be as sharp as that, though, and he paused to get control of a quieter manner. "I'm sorry, but I guess you didn't know how that sounded. Nobody's said a word to me about Burns. And when it comes to entertaining your friends here, you can't have young men coming to see you and finding you alone; nobody but the servants. Even for going anywhere at night, when I'm away, you'll want someone. I hadn't thought it through as far as that before. We'll call that settled, I guess, Trix."

But he saw it was anything but settled in his daughter's mind. "All my life," she said, with a sort of vicious quietness, "I've had people sticking their noses into the things I was doing, telling tales on me, making mother say I couldn't do this or that was wrong to do that. And now you talk about hiring someone to do just that thing. Well, it isn't what I came here for. If you trusted me you wouldn't mind having people coming to see me without a chaperon spying on me all the time. But you don't trust me; that's the trouble. You asked me tonight who I'd been telephoning to. It wasn't anybody—but if it had been I wouldn't have told you."

She was, beyond concealment, crying now, and this phenomenon, while it paralyzed him, seemed to rob her of even the wish for self-control. "You wouldn't have thought of it, yourself," she sobbed. "It's all been put into your head—that I'm a freak that has to be taught how to act, and watched to see that I don't do anything awful—Jennie MacArthur and Mrs. Williamson—and Margaret!"

She crumpled her handkerchief into her fist and beat on the table with it. "I'm not going to have your mistresses telling you what I'm to do," she cried. "Nor an old maid that's trying to marry you, either!"

He reached across and seized her by the arms. "What the devil do you mean by that?" he roared at her. She wasted no breath answering; her single-minded purpose was to break out of his grip. Her teeth were locked, her face flushed, her eyes blazing. "You listen!" he went on during a panting lull in the struggle. "If you were a boy you'd get the finest licking of your young life for saying a thing like that. Being a girl, you oughtn't to know enough to say it. But this is the fact, and don't you ever forget it: Jennie MacArthur is as good a woman as your mother is. And for anything I know about it one way or the other, Mrs. Williamson is, too—You little wildcat! Stop fighting and I'll let you go."

But with an unexpected sudden wrench that pulled him a little off balance, she broke away. "I don't have to stay here," she panted from the doorway. "I can go back to California. I've got the rest of that thousand dollars—where you can't find it." Another sob got in the way of whatever more she had to tell him, and she fled to her room and slammed the door behind her.

She fled to her room and slammed the door behind her.

make them possible, brought him little comfort. He had a sense of irreparable injury done to a precious fragile thing. It might be patched together after a fashion, but it could never again be as it had been before. He felt no abiding anger against the girl—was unable, indeed, to remember what she had done to provoke his explosion. He loved and admired her more than ever; her courage in fighting him off, defying him, even while his hands had gripped her. No tears, then! No hint of surrender.

For hours he sat in the chair he'd risen from to spring upon her, smoking, sipping whisky, meditating in a mood of deepening melancholy. Jennie MacArthur had warned him that his plan wouldn't work, and it looked as if Jennie, once more, was right. It would have worked, though, but for his infernal temper. The girl was like him; was more, in every way, his daughter than either of them had dreamed possible. They might, if he had not smashed the possibility to bits, tonight, have become the finest sort of comrades—an alliance, defensive and offensive, against the world! He'd like to prove Jennie wrong, for once.

Where the devil, he wondered, had Trix picked up that fantastic idea about him and Jennie? She couldn't have thought of such a thing by herself. Someone must have told her the slander in so many words. He'd manage to find out who the traitor was, if it was the last—no, next to last—thing he ever did.

He got up, stiffly, feeling old, and went out into the passage on his way to bed. Outside his daughter's door he stopped to listen. Until that moment it hadn't occurred to him to wonder how she had spent the intervening hours. Had they been as miserable for her as for him? Had she been weeping quietly over her own defeated hopes? The thought brought a lump into his throat.

She wasn't weeping now. It was dead still in there. Then came her voice, young, clear, unamused. "Is that you, Dad?" His own would not at once respond to command, and she went on, "If it is, come in." It was an invitation he'd never had, nor sought, before.

She switched on the night-lamp as he entered, and patted the edge of the bed as the place where she wanted him to sit. When he was seated she held out both hands to him, displaying the full length of her bare arms. His finger-prints were upon them both, in the livid discoloration of bruises. "Good Lord, Trix," he cried, aghast, "did I do that to you?"

She nodded with a smile of friendly mischief. "I bruise awfully easy," she explained. "Sometimes when it hasn't hurt at all, it's been kind of lucky, in a way. It kept grandfather and the rest from getting rough with me. They never punished me except by shutting me up, and I could usually get out, somehow."

"You can't go back to that," he said. "No," she admitted, soberly. "I couldn't go back there, even if Mr. Whittington wasn't going to marry mother. But I can go back to Hollywood. I'm practically sure I can get a job there."

"Then you can't forgive me?" he asked.

"Of course I do!" She seemed astonished at the question. "It was mostly my fault, anyhow. It seemed as if I just had to get you mad. I don't know why—exactly. But I'm crazy about you, Dad. I think you're the most wonderful man in the world."

"Then why," he demanded, "do you talk about going off leaving me? Is it just because I wanted to hire a—companion for you?"

She stirred uneasily at the question; it wasn't one, apparently, that she had a categorical answer for. "I could have got on well enough with my mother," she said at last, "if grandpa and grandma hadn't kept butting in all the time, putting ideas into her head and making her go back on things she'd promised. I hate noisy, interfering people, whoever they are—So when I saw those women deciding things for you—about me—changing you round just as they liked, it made me so mad I didn't care what happened." She added, after a moment's pause, "I'm glad I found out about—Miss MacArthur, though."

"Trix," he asked, "do you mind telling me—it's just a matter of curiosity—who put an idea like that into your head? It was a h— of a thing to do, whoever did it."

"Why, nobody did it," she declared, instantly, wide-eyed. "Nobody but you and her. The way you acted together, her calling you Joe and knowing such a lot about me and telling you you needn't stay and work that day unless you liked. When you were supposed to be her boss! And the way you liked it, and wanted to sit around and talk. I don't know. It struck me as natural, that was all."

"But how could it? That's what I want to know. How could you think of a thing like that? Or don't you know what it means?—I can't even talk to you about it!"

She smiled up at him, incredibly composed, gentle with his embarrassment. "Dad," she remonstrated, "am I supposed to think you've lived all these years since you left mother—like a monk in a monastery?"

Had he been a mere disinterested bystander, his fine ear might have spotted that line as a quotation, picked up, treasured—rehearsed perhaps. As it was, nothing of the sort occurred to him. He stared at her in astonished silence while she, having got the whip-hand now, went on—sented her lines with a smoothness and directness that was pleasant to see. Opposite her was seen Henry Bream, of Gettysburg, in the role of Captain Matt Peasley, who with Florrie sets about to outdo in the shipping business the latter's father, "Cappy Ricks."

Old England herself never produced a native son, who could have so capably filled the part of Cecil Pericles Bernard as did Greenwood Asbury. His portrayal of the son of a rich father, sent to "Cappy Ricks" to be instructed as a seaman, was done to perfection, according to accredited theater patrons. Opposite him was seen Miss Catherine Reaser, of Gettysburg, and the love story in which they figured was a pleasing auxiliary to the main love theme of the plot.

Dr. Richard A. Arms, of the College faculty, directed the play, and may readily consider the triumph of "Cappy Ricks" as "another feather in his cap." Each one of the characters was well-trained and just seemed cast for the part he or she portrayed.

The cast of "Cappy Ricks" follows: "Cappy Ricks," Frederick Reinartz; Florrie Ricks, his daughter, Miss Louise C. Dougherty; Aunt Lucie Ricks, his sister, Miss Madylin Roth; Skinner, Horace Armour; Ellen Murray, Miss Catherine Reaser; Cecil Pericles Bernard, N. G. Asbury; Singleton, Ross Shelly; Brookfield, Donald Doub; and Captain Matt Peasley, Henry T. Bream.

BIGLERVILLE

North Biglerville—Friday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Garretson were: Mr. and Mrs. Hemshaw, of Pasadena, California. Mr. and Mrs. Hemshaw came by the way of the Panama Canal to New York; from there by rail south, and spent about three weeks touring the southern states. They were formerly from this part of the country and visited the old Garretson homestead as well as Mr. and Mrs. Eli Garretson. They left on Saturday for Delaware and will later return to Philadelphia to attend a meeting of The Friends' Church at that place.

FREES HUSBAND HELD FOR MURDER

Wife of Alleged Slayer Holds Up Jailer at Point of Pistol.

Rochester, N. Y., May 5.—Howard M. Keavin, scheduled to go on trial on May 19 for the murder of a policeman, escaped from the Ontario County Jail at Canandaigua Sunday afternoon when the accused slayer's wife and sister held up at pistol point a lone jailer. Keavin's wife escaped with him in an automobile.

The two women called at the jail and asked to see the prisoner, according to Deputy Smith, the jailer. Smith brought Keavin from his cell into the office, where the women were waiting.

Sister Trapped In Jail
Keavin's wife then drew two revolvers, Smith said, and ordered the jailer not to move. The sister passed another revolver to Keavin.

The prisoner and his wife then ran from the jail to a waiting automobile, driven by an unidentified man. In the excitement the sister stepped behind the barred door leading to the cell-room and Smith slammed the door shut. She is held at the jail.

Fire Two Shots At Jailer

Keavin and his wife fired two shots at the pursuing jailer as the car got under way, Smith said. The machine last was seen about 10 miles outside of Canandaigua headed for Rochester. Keavin is accused of having killed Aeneas McDonnell, a Geneva policeman, who was arresting him on February 19 for the robbery of the New York Central Station at Geneva, two hours before. The officer was shot twice through the body and died within a few hours.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

A Welcome Member of the Family

A MOTOR car is never more appreciated than in the springtime. Its convenience and enjoyment are shared by all the family—and by speeding up the day's work, it provides more time for recreation.

A Ford Touring Car becomes a welcome member of the family. It provides every motor car essential at the lowest price for which a five passenger car has ever sold—a price only made possible by complete manufacture, in tremendous volume, in the largest and most economically operated plants in the automobile industry.

By controlling every step in manufacture, from the mining of the ore to delivery of the finished car, Ford eliminates waste and reduces vital costs to a minimum. One profit is made—hundreds are saved.

This efficiency of manufacture is accurately reflected in the quality and price of the Ford Touring car.

ENFORCING HIGHWAY LAWS

The present automobile season has had a most favorable opening in this vicinity. With an unusual number of cars in Gettysburg and on county roads Sunday, not a single accident of a serious nature has been reported. This is gratifying, indeed, and it is to be earnestly hoped that a healthier condition in regard to accidents will continue throughout this season than last.

The lack of accidents is first attributable to greater care on the part of individual drivers. But there is no doubt that the increased number of motor patrolmen, augmenting the activities of the state police, on the roads Sunday in full force, had a lot to do toward decreasing recklessness, and inspiring greater care. The motor patrolmen, like the troopers, trained as they are under the same system and general supervision, have the confidence of the motor traveling public as a result of their application of a broad viewpoint and their generous interpretation of highway rules and regulations. They can be depended upon to enforce the laws in a gentlemanly manner and they deserve the full cooperation and support in their work of the automobile drivers of the community.

The work of the state patrolmen is in striking contrast to the tactics employed by some municipalities in this section in harassing motorists in order to swell borough funds, particularly West York borough, which, in the final analysis, amounts to nothing more nor less than a legalized form of highway robbery.

New Plant May Locate

HAGERSTOWN — The National Cigarette Company will erect a branch factory in Hagerstown, it was announced following the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce Friday. The company is engaged in the manufacture of paving brick made from cinder and is erecting large plants throughout the South. Straub Crozier, one of the officials of the Company, has been to Hagerstown and inspected a number of prospective sites, but has not definitely decided upon any. It is understood that work of building the plant will be started as soon as the site is selected. The industries committee of the Chamber of Commerce has been negotiating with the company for some time.

Couple Leaves Jail

HAGERSTOWN — James Werdens and his wife, Anna Werdens, who with their baby and a dog spent the last week in the local jail, were released Friday when the money they were said to have obtained from a number of local merchants through bad checks was repaid to the merchants. The Werdens lived here for some time and are said to have had a bank account here. They are said to have purchased goods from local stores and given checks in payment. When the checks were presented for payment the accounts had been closed. The couple had in the meantime left the city. They were brought back by Sheriff Duffey and until Friday were in jail. They have succeeded in obtaining sufficient money to make

ENVY

My boy, when malice starts to sneer
And envy would your worth defame,
Look back upon that earlier year
When there was none to praise or blame.

Be not discouraged or dismayed
Because at you some shafts are thrown—
The critic never draws his blade
Against the toiler who's unknown.

The bitter tongues have naught to say
Against the man who never tries;
They keep their ridicule to slay
The form that has begun to rise.

When men you never heard of start
Belittling what you've tried to do,
Be not discouraged, but take heart!
At least you know they've heard of you.

Look back upon the silent years,
Then hear the scoffings with a smile;
None draws the malice and the sneers
Except the man who is worth while.

So when the voice of envy shrieks
And malice cries your faults aloud,
Remember that the man who speaks
Has seen your head above the crowd.

3 DIE IN CRASH
AS HOME BURNS

Mother, Child and Neighbor Killed When Train Strikes Auto.

Seaford, Del., May 5.—Three people were killed outright following the destruction of a home and all its contents by fire Saturday night at Bacon Switch, on the Delaware division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, between Seaford and Delmar.

The dead are William Dickerson, aged 30; Mrs. Elsie Phillips, aged 25, and her 3-year-old son, George, of Bacon Switch.

The burned home belonged to George Phillips, fireman on the Delaware division of the Pennsylvania railroad and husband of the dead woman.

Told Of Fire

Phillips and his family spent Saturday evening in Salisbury, Maryland, on a shopping trip, and were on their way home when they met William Dickerson, a neighbor, on the State highway. Dickerson told Phillips his home and contents had been destroyed early in the evening.

Dickerson got in the car and rode to the burned residence of Phillips, the latter requesting Dickerson to drive his wife and little son over to the home of her father, George W. Davis, a merchant at Bacon Switch. As he was doing so, the car was hit by a train.

Mrs. Mathilde Bradley, of N. Y., Asks $50,000 Damages in Her Suit.

Cumberland, Md., May 5.—Mrs. Mathilde DeNouley Bradley, 3206 Park avenue, New York City, through her attorneys, Peasley, Birmingham & Gennert, New York, and F. Brooke Whiting, this city, has filed suit for $50,000 against William B. Bradley, father; Emma G. Bradley, aunt, and Mrs. Helen Bradley White, sister of Mrs. Mathilde Bradley's husband, Bradley, now of Pittsburgh, for alienation of the affections of James Bradley.

William B. Bradley and Mrs. Emma G. Bradley are residents of Lonaconing, former home of James Bradley, and Mrs. Helen Bradley White resides in Pittsburgh.

It is set out that the defendants have vilified the character of Mrs. Mathilde DeN. Bradley and have otherwise won the affection of the husband, James Bradley, from his wife.

The suit is filed in the federal court here because of the diversity of the residences of the parties in the suit.

Photostatic copies of letters, alleged to have been written by the defendants, are filed with the declaration with C. Edgar Keller, clerk of the United States district court.

D. Lindley Sloan is attorney for the defendants.

James Bradley is an engineer and is said to be living in Pittsburgh, while the wife is a resident of New York.

GAVE WIFE POISON GERMS TO END LOVE AFFAIR.

MRS. S. G. BARING (left) & NURSE LUCY HUMMEL. C. O. BARING.

It is said that the defense of Clarence O. Baring, New York representative of the Minneapolis Heat Regulator Company, under arrest in White Plains, N. Y., on the charge that he tried to poison his wife with arsenic and to kill her with deadly disease germs, will be insanity. He declares he tried to make his wealthy wife, nine years his senior, ill, so that he could send her to California and thus have an opportunity to break off a love affair he had with another woman.

THE IRON POTS OF GONDRICOURT

Just after daybreak a traveler along the narrow byways of a small French village can see the housewife beginning her day. Through the open doorway her fireplace glows like a forge. A heavy iron pot, which she has filled with water from the town pump, is lifted and swung upon the crane. At the other end of the village, perhaps, runs the little stream where she washes her family's clothes upon the rocks.

Throughout the village life of much of Europe, such pictures are multiplied by thousands. Quaint, to be sure, but what grinding and incessant toil these primitive household arrangements mean!

In contrast to this, even the remote districts of America boast comfort unknown to the rural life of other countries. Conveniences are found that could not be duplicated in any save the wealthiest city homes of foreign nations.

Adequate heating systems, the farm lighting plant, the washing machine, the vacuum cleaner, the telephone, and numberless labor-saving devices have lifted modern life in America to unprecedented levels of comfort and ease.

To a large measure this has been due to advertising. Advertising has familiarized all of us with new inventions. Advertising has made possible the wide distribution of new products. By increasing sales, advertising has reduced the price of modern household utilities to the reach of the modest purse.

By reading advertisements we keep abreast of modern progress

Snobbery is more conspicuous than scenery at fashionable resorts.

When Nature intends that a man shall succeed, she bestows more bone capacity to his back than to his head.

LUCY AND THE IMP

ONCE there was a little girl named Lucy who was never ready to go to bed when bedtime came around. She fretted and pouted and grew so disagreeable that one night her mother told her she could go to bed when she liked but she was certain she would wish she had gone at the right time.

Lucy was sitting on a rug in front of the fireplace, so she curled up with her book and began to read, quite sure she would not be sorry she did not go to bed early.

The firelight danced on the book she was looking at and Lucy thought once she could almost see some little fire-imps dancing in the snapping wood fire.

Her eyes seemed to feel queer but she rubbed them—she was not a bit sleepy. She was sure of that. It must be the warm fire that made them feel so queer.

The house seemed very still and then suddenly from right out of the Lucy did not wish to go with this queer little creature, but she did not seem to have anything to do with it. The imp just touched her with his feathery-tipped fingers and away she went right into the fireplace and up the chimney.

Not away up, but a little way; and then a door opened and in she went and the imp with her into a room all red and black. In a big high chair sat a big red and black imp—a Grandmother Imp, Lucy thought, because she wore a ruffled cap of black around her red face.

"Here's another stayup," said the imp who had brought her, and then on the floor around the Grandmother Imp's chair Lucy saw a number of children asleep.

The door closed with a click and Lucy saw that the little imp had gone. "He has gone to find more stayup children," said the Grandmother Imp. "We will get them all in here after awhile."

"What will you do with them?" asked Lucy, who had found her tongue and was getting a bit frightened. She wished she was in her own room in bed and not in this red and black place.

"I can't tell you that until my husband comes home," said the Grandmother Imp. "He has a different punishment for every night, but this is your first night here, so he won't be as hard on you as some of the others who have stayed up before. But you lie down beside the other stayups and go to sleep until he comes."

Lucy could not find a soft spot on the floor. She tried resting her head on her arm, she curled up as she had on the big fur rug in front of the fireplace. But it was no use. She could not sleep.

"Click, click," Lucy heard. She was sure it was the Grandfather Imp turning the lock in the door. He had come to punish the stayups. Up she jumped and found herself standing on the fur rug in front of the fireplace.

The room was dark, the house seemed very still, the fire was not burning very brightly and a dying ember snapped. That was what she had heard and it awakened her.

Lucy made her way up to her room, but it was very pokey all alone at that hour of the night; nobody to say good-night and kiss you or tuck you in. And when Lucy crept into bed and pulled the bedclothes around her she made up her mind she would never be a stayup again and let the red and black imp catch her.

"Here is Another Stayup," Said the Imp.

fireplace there stepped one of the very imps Lucy had thought she caught a glimpse of.

He wore a red and black cape over a tightly fitted suit of black and on his head a black cap with a waving red feather.

At the tips of his shoes were the same sort of wavy feathers and on his fingertips as well.

"So you sat up late tonight, did you?" he said to Lucy. "Well, come along with me. All children should be in bed before this. Don't you know this is the magic hour and it belongs to us imps and other magic folks?"

Mothers!

Give the children WRIGLEY'S after every meal

A prominent physician says:

"It is surprising how free from decay the teeth can be kept by using gum after each meal."

You know how hard it is to get the children to clean their teeth. By giving them WRIGLEY'S you not only reward them for cleaning their teeth, but the reward is actually the means of performing this important service!

WRIGLEY'S aids digestion too, and acts as an antiseptic wash for the mouth and throat. Several flavors—all of WRIGLEY quality.

"What's the matter with your inside coat pocket?" we asked—"why don't you look there?"

"Gee—" he replied, "if it isn't there I'LL DROP DEAD!"
